On examination, there are some other same opinion. Section VI., Art. I, says: reased during such times, and no per-States shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office,"

No office has been ereuted, but a vaaney has been, and by the Senate, so the bjection goes to the very marrow of the atute, which was directed against alad made or controlled.

The second provision knocks the sand lear from under Ben. Wade. The statcer of the Senate, he shall be chosen; the Constitution says, as a Senator, he is neligible. So that, under the Constitu on, before he is elected, he must resign s Senatorship, and The statute pro cides, if he loses the Senatorship, he mnot be a candidate.

That is precisely the predicament of Mr. Ben. Wale. To recapitulate his inligibilities, we find them as follows:

nd Ben, Wale, as Senator, is not an ntion provides that no Senator shall be Washington, D. He is not eligible, for he is plainly for bidden from holding the office while Senator, and it is only as Senator he can ie Pliosell.

We think these brief anthorities settle he question of Mr. Ben. Wade's ineligiility. By the Constitution, he cannot be President, nor act as President, but that will not prevent the usurgations of l'ongress making him chief ruler.
